The Police Commissioners reported it necessary to have a force of nine extra men for duty in East Los Angeles, Boyle Heights and the neighborhood of the University. A preamble and resolutions were presented by Councilman Collins, praying earnestly for the establishment in the city of a reformatory for malefactors under the age of 16 years. He strongly urged the Council to take action upon this subject. As the Legislature does not meet for some months, and as the Council cannot take action, it was decided to appoint a committee of three—the City Attorney and two members—to act upon this subject. President Breed will appoint this committee at the next meeting of the Council.

SEWERAGE MATTERS.

Copies of the same will be ready for distribution today. The report of the City Engineer will be ready at the next meeting.

The ordinance granting the City Railroad Company the right to double its track from First street to a point on Upper Main street, near the City Plaza, which was at the last meeting referred to the Board of Public Works, was denied on motion of the board. The communication of the City Surveyor, that he could not certify to the quality of the work done by Contractor Scherer, was referred to the Board of Public Works.

NEW ORDINANCES.

The ordinance relating to the sale of lots No. 1 and 3, in Hancock addition, was so amended that these lots should be sold at public auction by the City Clerk, on December 24, for not less than $500 per acre. AN INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL. Mr. Collins presented the following communication:

To the Honorable, the Council of Los Angeles—GENTLEMEN: At the present time we are devoting much of our time and money to enlarging and perfecting our system of public schools, in both city and county, and very properly, but this is more particularly in the interest of those who are directed by home influences; whose pathway is guarded by the watchful interest exerted by parental love. All judicious expenditure in this direction is approved, is of the greatest importance—in the opinion of the undersigned—in the education of the youth of the land, his knowledge of our political institutions and our country's history, the perpetuity of our Government is established. This case and expenditure does not, however, mark the limit of our obligation; we have large numbers of children in our midst who may be termed the driftwood of society whose interests and education should be a charge to the Government, and in which their lot is cast, who unnoticed to-day as they are jostled about in the ebb and flow of increasing population. The years are few and fly quietly when their presence and influence for good or evil will be felt in the community and Nation.

It is the policy of our system of government to place the means of education within the reach of all, it being for the public welfare and of the first importance. To that end then the means should be provided for those of tender years, who are unhappily cast upon the community without means of support or education, and with no influence to direct them. It is my aim to have established in this city an industrial and educational institution for children under 16 years of age, said joint committee to arrange all details and report to this Council at the first meeting in November 1887. Adopted.

Resolved, By the Mayor and Council of the City of Los Angeles (Sec. 1), that a committee of three be appointed by the President of the Council, whose duty it shall be to confer with a committee of the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles County in consideration of the question of establishing for the County of Los Angeles an industrial and educational institution for children under 16 years of age, said joint committee to arrange all details and report to this Council at the first meeting in November 1887. Adopted.

Mrs. A. S. Ayer, Secretary of the Board of Education, sent in the following communication:

"At a late meeting of the Board of Education I was instructed to request of your honorable body the reservation of one acre of land now owned by the city on its southern boundary for school purposes. Also, I wish to inquire as to the possibility of a similar reservation or the sale at reasonable figures for one of the lots on Fort Hill, if the same would be in all ways suitable for the erection thereon of a high school building, which would be an ornament to our city and an attraction to the best class of citizens. Your generous response to our request for bonds will be sufficient only for the present needs, as sites are so expensive. Nothing will be left for the high school, a felt want in our department. Referred to the Finance Committee. Adopted.

PROSPECTS are not favorable for the Grand Army parade at St. Louis today. Too much rain and mud!

THE shell-game operator, who was shot by one of his victims at Santa Monica, is not likely to die, after all. How sad!
SAN BUENAVENTURA voted last Saturday to issue $30,000 in bonds to build a school-house. The ballot stood 198 for and 6 against.

WHEN Los Angeles gets paved streets—if she ever gets them—the Council ought to oblige truckmen to have wide tires on their wheels.
THE delegation of Grand Lodge Odd Fellows, who have been expected for some time, will arrive here Friday next, and will remain until Sunday. A hearty reception is in store for them.

A SAN FRANCISCO special announces more rate cutting on Eastern fares. Another railway war would doubtless bring an immense number of excursionists to the coast, but war or no war, high rates or low, they will come just the same to Southern California.
FROM the nature of complaints entered yesterday it seems that there has been some crooked work with poll-tax receipts in this city. The irregularity ought to be looked up at once, and righted so far as possible. It is had enough to ask a lot of hard-working men to pay their poll tax second time, the same year, but when their wages are garnished for the second payment, insult is added to injury.

THE excursionists due in Los Angeles today number 2600. For about the thirty-ninth time we rise to inquire, Where is Los Angeles going to put them? The good people of this city ought to open their private residences to accommodate these visitors rather than have them turned out for want of accommodation. Why not have an immigration bureau established to look after strangers in search of quarters? Those who have available rooms could notify the bureau, and the bureau could notify newcomers. The benefit would be mutual.

THE people of Los Angeles, true to their instincts, taste and training, accord to Dion Boucicault, the author, a spontaneous and cordial reception. It is the boast of our city that it never gives the cold-shoulder to genuine talent. Mr. Boucicault, unlike many stars of magnitude, is not afraid of being eclipsed by associating good actors with him—in the same constellation, so to speak—and the result is a company that is pleasing all through. We hope that Mr. Boucicault will find his engagement as pleasant here as it is sure to be profitable.

SOMEbody started the foolish story in a San Francisco paper that the people of Los Angeles have $44,000,000 of debts to pay this fall, and only $12,000,000 in the banks to pay them with. The fact is, there are $18,000,000 in our banks, and the surplus is growing, and the way we handle our money down here, we can pay $100,000,000 of debts with it. When a man gets hold of money he doesn't put it into an old stocking, or bury it, but he pays his debts, or buys more property. That keeps the dollar nimble, and in the course of a month, it may have paid twenty debts. That is financing.

THERE seems to be a regular Portland cement famine in this city, and, in fact, throughout the State. Not a barrel of the precious stuff is to be had in the market for love or money. The shortage is due probably to the fact that one or two cargoes of cement have gone down in shipwreck on their way across, and the unusual activity in building has quickly exhausted all of the old supply. Many branches of industry are temporarily crippled. None suffer worse in this respect than the street-paving contractors who have engaged to lay concrete foundations for their work. A petition was presented to the Council yesterday, asking that a substantial macadam be substituted for the concrete in order that the work need not be further delayed. If the plan of substitution meets the approval of the City Engineer and Board of Public Works, we hope the Council will authorize it. Anything, in reason, to help along that paving before the wet weather sets in!

The Restriction Act—A New Wrinkle.

The Restriction Act has at no time been an overhanging success. Since the enactment of the measure Chinese have managed to enter the country about as regularly as they did before. True, the number of Chinese immigrants has not been so great as in the years preceding the attempted application of restriction, but then the demand for Chinese labor has not been as it was in ante-restriction days. The completion of the great railway enterprises, and the prevalence and continuance of anti-Chinese agitations, cut down enormously the immigration from China, even before the Restriction Act went into force; and the probabilities are that we have received as many Chinese immigrants since the being of the act as we would have received did it not exist.

The truth is, the Restriction Act has not restricted Chinese immigration. It has saddled money cost upon the Government in keeping the United States courts constantly employed in investigating alleged fraudulent landing certificates of Mongols who had effected a landing or who desired to land; and the great majority of those cases have been decided in favor of the Mongols.

In China the certificate system, inaugurated by the Restriction Act, has had a very singular effect. It has raised up a most pernicious trade in the scalping of passenger tickets and in the brokering of certificates. It is said that those engaged in this mean and despicable brokerage are all Caucasians and mainly Americans. Even some of our consular attaches are accused of making money in this questionable manner.

Since the application of the Restriction Act, and the creation of the certificate brokerage business in China, quite a number of Chinese have reached us by way of Washington Territory via British Columbia.

In this direction the Restriction Act has got us into an additional odd fix. Chinese who land regularly in British Columbia must pay $50 each. If a Mongol is detected in Washington Territory as having come from our British neighbor and he is taken back to Victoria, the records there must show that he has paid the $50 required else he is presumed not to have landed on British soil—ergo: he did not come to America from British Columbia.

In this instance the man in dispute must be brought back to America, where he becomes a white elephant on the hands of the authorities. Relative to this feature of the Chinese Restriction muddle, instructions have been received in Washington Territory from Atty-Gen. Garland that, under section 16, of the act, a charge of misdemeanor can be made against the white elephant Chinese, the act defining unlawful entry to be a misdemeanor. The penalty is a fine not to exceed $1000, or a term not exceeding one year in the penitentiary, or both. It is claimed that by this procedure Chinamen will then have the alternative of getting themselves out of this country, or staying in the penitentiary for life, as the serving of a sentence for misdemeanor does not purge them of the original unlawful entry.

A Munificent Bequest.

The announcement is made today that D. Freeman, the long-time owner of Centinela ranch, has made a munificent bequest to the University of Southern California. The gift amounts to $800,000, comprising both money and land. It is for the erection and endowment of a school of applied science, to be located at the new town of Inglewood, on the Centinela ranch. Suitable grounds, forming a commanding site, have been granted by the Centinela Inglewood Company, and $100,000 of the bequest is to be used in erecting thereon a building suitable for the purpose. The remaining $700,000 will be reserved for an endowment fund. This magnificent tender has been accepted by the regents, and the College of Science will be one of the integral parts of this most successful university, probably within a year.

Mr. Freeman is, first of all, to be congratulated on this ten-strike of liberality; and, after him, the University of Southern California and Southern California generally, whose institution it is.

Nothing better betokens the broad spirit of liberality and enterprise of the men of wealth hereabouts than their open-handed beneficence to educational institutions. And how much better use of wealth it is than to meekly hoard it or meanly use it for piling up more millions. Better than gambling in stocks or establishing studs of fast

A Southern Pacific Official Rises to Explain

Just How the Government Commission Came to Borrow.

Many Cities Anxious to Secure the New Soldiers' Home.

W. H. L. Barnes Appointed Major-General—The Tonto Basin Broils Ended by the Deaths of the Brothers—An Oakland Croesus' Will.

By Telegram to The Times. SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—[Special.] With reference to the published statement that the Pacific Railway Commissioners while here were under the necessity of borrowing $400,000 of the Southern Pacific Company to meet current expenses, Stephen T. Gage, of the Southern Pacific, said today: "The Commissioners found themselves through with the investigation sooner than they expected to be, and the $400,000 appropriation made by the commission by Congressional act, had been placed to their credit. We would never have mentioned it ourselves, but, seeing that it has come out, we can but confirm it. The president and directors of the company were anxious to have a thorough investigation, in the broad meaning of the term, and, desiring of Congress the efforts of Congress in appointing the commission. They therefore strove to give the commission every facility to enter into the spirit and letter of the law. Before these gentlemen left they ran short of money—$400,000 I believe—and being anxious to settle their bills, it was not unusual that they should come to people who had met them on a fair footing and had done all they could to aid them. The money was of course readily advanced, they stating why it was required and refunding it much sooner than we could have expected. Some may think it rather singular proceeding, but that is the opinion of outsiders." W.

THE SOLDIERS' HOME. The Location to be Settled Next Month. SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 26.—[By the Associated Press.] The offers made by the various cities in the State as sites for the location of the National Soldiers' Home will be examined and acted upon at a meeting of the managers of the National Home to be held in this city in November. Several of the managers are expected to reach here by the 5th of that month. They will remain here two or three weeks. President Cleveland, Chief Justice Waite and Secretary Endicott are members of the board; Gen. J. M. Smith, of the War Department, is president; Col. Len. A. Harris, ex-Mayor of Cincinnati, is vice-president; James S. Negley, of Pittsburgh, ex-Congressman; John C. Black, of Washington, Commissioner of Pensions; Gen. W. S. Sewell, of Camden, ex-Senator from New Jersey, and Capt. Blanding, of this city, are also members of the board. The officers of the board, and are not likely to be present. Offers of sites have been received from Santa Rosa, Martinez, Watsonville, Livermore, the city of Oakland, Byron (Contra Costa county), Ellen Ellen, Monterey, Vallejo, San Jose, Sacramento, San Francisco, San Diego, Los Angeles and Santa Barbara are both striving for it.

AN UNHAPPY LIFE.

A GIRL MARRIES AGAINST HER PARENTS' WILL AND SUFFERS.

She Lies Three Days in a Trance, and When Her Parents Die She Finds Herself an Heiress, But Without a Home.

(Atlanta Constitution.)

"I have been connected with the Police Department," said Capt. Crim last night, "for years, and during that time I have encountered many events--some sad, some sensational, some pathetic, and some interesting in the extreme; but today I ran upon one which surpasses all that I have ever seen in any way."

The story of which the Captain spoke is truly an interesting one.

Several years ago there came to the metropolis of the Palmetto State a young German. He was a complete stranger in the place, but he was sober and industrious, and soon acquired friends. In a short time he saved enough money to embark in business, and with energy and good judgment pushed on until he had a good bank account. Then he returned to Germany, and when he came back to the Palmetto State brought with him his bride, a woman who proved a great helpmate to him.

In time a son gladdened the household; then a second came to add to the joy of the happy parents. A daughter next delighted the mother's heart. The children grew and thrived. They were all bright, the boys taking after their father in his industrious habits, while the girl seemed to inherit all the mother's good qualities. The boys, when large enough to attend business, entered their father's house and in time became members of the firm. The girl grew into

A HAPPY BEAUTIFUL WOMAN, and was the joy of her mother, the pride of her brothers, and the delight of her father. Naturally bright, she took kindly to the great educational advantages showered upon her with a lavish hand. At the age of 17 she graduated from the leading female seminary of the State, and with a diploma in her hand and a head full of literary and musical knowledge and a heart full of love for her family, she returned to her home.

Soon she became a recognized belle, and many of the brightest men in the State sought her hand, but to all, except one, she turned a deaf ear. That one was a young man just entering upon a promising business career, but one whose habits were not the best. The young lady's parents

OBJECTED TO THE MATCH when they heard of it, but their daughter would not listen to reason and the marriage came off. The bride's parents were greatly incensed, and declined to receive her and her husband or even to speak to either, but happy in the love of a husband she gave up her parental home.

For a time everything moved smoothly along, the husband being all love and kindness, but when he realized that his bride had been cast off by her parents, who were then well off, his entire nature changed, and harsh words and brutal treatment were substituted for kindness and love. The lady's father fell ill and died. Just before his death his daughter begged to see him, but the father refused the request. With a broken heart she returned to her husband to meet with abuse, and the cruel treatment made her ill. When her illness was at a critical point she heard of her father's death. The story was told her roughly and rudely by her husband, and scarcely had he uttered the words when his wife threw her hands above her head and

TO ALL APPEARANCES DIED. The nurse, an old negro woman, who had attended the lady from childhood, was present, and, seeing the great change, called in a physician, who quickly pronounced the lady dead.

In a short time her body was prepared for burial, and all arrangements for the funeral were made. At the appointed time the few friends who had remained around the casket for a last look upon her face. Flowers were scattered over the casket, and the undertaker was in the act of shutting in the face forever, when some one accidentally detected a change of color in the face. In a few seconds the color was perceptibly higher, and the change caused an examination. Portions of the body were warm, and a physician quickly

DETECTED SIGNS OF LIFE. The almost entombed woman was taken from the casket and laid upon a bed. Signs of life manifested themselves more rapidly, and before the day was over she opened her eyes, and looking about the room, closed them again. Her breathing became regular, and it was soon apparent that she was sleeping.

For hours she slept, and when she awoke she appeared to have taken a new lease upon life. Physicians sat beside the bed watching the changes and studying the remarkable case. As the young woman grew stronger she astonished everybody by recounting everything which had transpired about her from the time she first closed her eyes in apparent death. She said:

"I cannot describe you my feelings. My eyelids you say were closed, but I cannot believe it, because I could see distinctly everything that was going on about me. I saw the undertaker as I was robbed for the grave, and I knew what was being done. I tried to speak, I tried to move, but I could do nothing. I remember when I was laid in the coffin and when the lid was placed over me. And oh! you have no idea what my feelings were. I knew I was soon to be placed in the grave, and how hard I fought to give those about me some sign of life, but I could not. Finally, as the glass was about to be put over my face, I became unconscious for the first time. I truly believe I fainted, for I remember nothing until I woke and found myself in bed with you all gathered around me."

The physicians pronounced it a trance, and it lasted two days. Slowly she began to recover, and, after weeks, was able to move about; but during that illness her husband came near her only once, and upon that occasion, remarked:

"I had hoped to find you dead by this time, but there is no such luck for me."

When able to leave her bed the lady went to a friend's house, where she remained until in good health again. During this time her husband never came near her, and her brother and mother appeared to have forgotten her. Crushed and miserable, one night she left her friend's house quietly and made her way to Augusta, where she began trying to earn an honest living. She was a woman of rare beauty, and her BEAUTY WAS HER CURSE. A few months ago she came to Atlanta, and since her arrival there her mother has died, and the estate left by the old couple is valued at $25,000 to $30,000. To that estate there are three heirs, of whom the deserted bride is one.

"And now," said Capt. Crim, as he completed his narrative, "comes another feature of the story. The husband, whose cruel treatment drove his wife to where she is, regrets the steps, because of the money she will inherit, and wants a reconciliation. He has written several letters to her, and an attorney has been to see her, but she declines all overtures. And yesterday she engaged an attorney, who left last night for the Palmetto State to look after her interest in the estate. She is one of the legal heirs, and nothing can prevent her from procuring the money due her except fraud. She is a handsome woman, with jet black hair and dreamy, liquid eyes. Her early teachings and trainings cling to her still, despite her surroundings, and the casual observer quickly detects it. This is the story, and God knows I think it is a sad one. I hope she may recover every dollar due her and carry out her determination to go where she is unknown and lead a better life. It could not be more miserable than it has been heretofore," said the Captain, as he gave his police squad an order to fall in.

To Hang or Not to Hang.

(The Epoch.)

"If women comprehended all that is contained in the domestic sphere they would ask no other," says Mr. Herbert Spencer. Instead of trying to subvert the greatest of all economic principles--the division of labor--by trying to encroach on man's special domain, women should endeavor to educate their senses, their esthetic taste, their emotions and judgment, all with a view to improvement within the domestic sphere. In the education of women everything that tends to obliterate the mental differences between women and men should be avoided, because that destroys the greatest charm of life, and deprives women of their most irresistible source of influence over men.

Mrs. Sedgwick says that the female students known to her who devoted themselves to the higher education "have shown no inclination to adopt masculine sentiments or habits in any unnecessary or unseemly degree." Yet it cannot be denied that at some of the colleges for women a majority of the students show considerable indifference to certain feminine arts of deportment and ornamentation which men will always admire. This can be shown by means of an illustration which may seem trivial, but which, nevertheless, is suggestive. A very high, broad forehead is not beautiful in a woman. As Leigh Hunt remarks "a large bare forehead gives a woman a masculine and defying look. The word 'effrontery' comes from it. The hair should be brought over such a forehead as vines are trailed over a wall."

"Now, the composite portrait of sixty young women who graduated at Wellesley this year is characterized by remarkable 'breadth and fullness of the forehead, unconcealed by any disfiguring bang.' The portrait of thirty-six Vassar seniors, on the other hand, shows that a majority of the girls at that college wear the 'disfiguring bang.' This gives them, 'unfortunately,' a feminine appearance, but as some men, at least in New York, continue to prefer feminine women to others, these girls have, perhaps, no reason to regret their appearance. The sentence just quoted is attributed by the Sun to a Wellesley observer. This Wellesley observer obviously inherited her sense of beauty from the old Massachusetts Puritans.

An Irish Landlord.

(New York Tribune.)

Lord Kenmare, according to one of his own tenants at Killarney, interviewed by a correspondent of Le Temps, does not receive a tenth of his rents, and for seven or eight years has been unable to live at Killarney because of the certainty that he would be shot should he attempt to do so. Lady Kenmare and the children have lived there under constant police protection. "Yet Lord Kenmare," said the tenant, "is far from being a bad landlord. His tenants number 1800, and there are not three evictions a year on the estate. I myself know twenty of his tenants who owe him four years' rent and are not molested. But he has taken his stand against the League and that is enough. Besides, in the eyes of the tenants, the best landlord is good for nothing. They want the land and they will have it."

Water as a Motive Power.

(Pittsburgh Chronicle.)

A Deadwood judge ordered a jury to be fed on bread and water until a verdict could be agreed on, and the decision was soon forthcoming. The jurors did not mind the bread so much, but the water they thought an unwarrantable punishment.

IGNATIUS DONNELLY.

The Man Who Says That Bacon Wrote Shakespeare.

Much similar to the ever-varying sea serpent tales is the Bacon-Shakespeare controversy which ever and anon arises to the top of the literary cauldron as so much steam, to be cast aside, until the arising of the next boil. Mr. Ignatius Donnelly, the well-known advocate of the Baconian theory, is so much a lover of literature that his innate desire to know about and investigate the mystery attached to the Shakespearean writings is only a natural one, and Mr. Donnelly emphatically claims that Lord Bacon is the authentic author of the Shakespearean writings. Ignatius Donnelly is a native of Philadelphia, having been born in that city some fifty years ago. Removing westward he settled in Minnesota, where he became a well and honorably known influential citizen of the State. He has long been connected with its public and private affairs, his political record showing him capable of fulfilling such high positions as Senator, member of Congress, etc. As an author and journalist whose writings have met with wide favor, Mr. Donnelly's theories are simply marvelous. The doubt raised some thirty years ago with respect to the authorship of the Shakespearean plays and the belief that these are the productions of Lord Bacon, have both been thoroughly treated, is shown in the fact that more than one hundred books and pamphlets denying the authorship of Shakespeare have already been published, and therefore it is a desperate task for any one to claim originality as to any new literary discoveries in regard to the matter, as Mr. Donnelly has done, claiming to have found the missing link, which settles the question of authorship. Mr. Donnelly's book on the subject will be read and studied by all lovers of Shakespearean literature, so that each reader can form his own opinion after careful perusal of the containing statements and theories.

Who Are the Capitalists?

(Chicago Tribune.)

The burden of Socialistic and Anarchistic complaint is invariably the existence of capital, capitalists and the "capitalistic press." They are never allowed to except in a sneering, malicious and vengeful manner. They are charged with all the misfortunes, the ignorance, the poverty, if not the crime, in the Nation. The capitalist, in their eyes, is a monster who must be destroyed. The press is called the representative of his interests and the defender of his oppressions. The police and the militia are denounced as his tools. The law-makers are his creatures. If the Socialists are to be believed, nothing so bad, so oppressive, so dangerous, exists as the capitalist. Parsons said in April, 1885: "The only way to convince the capitalists is to use the gun and dynamite." Spies said in March, 1885: "He who wants to overthrow the strong must overthrow the body guard, the well-drilled and well-armed men of order." Schwab said in the day before the massacre: "The murderous capitalist beasts have been drunk with the smoking blood of the laborers." The evening of the massacre Fielden said: "Men, women and children have not been spared by the speeches and writings of these men and of their friends outside of the jail are full of bloodthirsty denunciations of capitalists. Who are these objects of Socialist hatred? In general the capitalists of the United States are all persons who have obtained and saved property by labor of hand or head, by purchase or by bequest. The largest single element of these capitalists comprises the owners of money in savings banks. In the Eastern States they hold eleven hundred millions, twice the capital of all the national banks, accumulated by thrift, economy and industry, and belonging to all classes of people. This is the highest form of capital. To the second class of capitalists belong all farmers who own their lands in whole or in part, comprising 4,000,000 families, in possession of $10,000,000,000 of property, who do more than half the work of the Nation. The third class of capitalists are the owners of money in stocks, bonds, mortgages, and corporate property, numbering several millions more, and behind them are the children, getting ready to recruit their ranks as they fall out.

In short, the capitalists of the United States include four-fifths of its people, and the so-called capitalist press represent the interest and their pursuits. They in turn, represent the thrift, economy, industry and enterprise of the country, and provide employment for the workingman. If the charges of the Socialists are true four-fifths of the people of the United States are robbers, murderers, oppressors and villains, whose only object is to crush and kill labor, to enslave the laboring man, to bleed the poor of their earnings, to keep them in want, hunger and humiliation for the purpose, as Spies said in his "revenger circular," "of satisfying the insatiable greed and filling the coffers of your lazy, thieving masters." And what do these Socialist agitators and Anarchist travelers represent? The European scene, the bloodiest, the filthiest, the most depraved and the most insane folly it is hard to conceive.

Rather Despondent.
(New York Sun.)

To nominate Grover Cleveland would be to enter upon a campaign of assured and prearranged defeat. Is it wise? It is necessary? Only upon the conviction that defeat is sure, unavoidable, beyond all power of present remedy. ## WITH THE POETS.

JINGLING RHYMES AND BITS OF FUN GATHERED UP.

My Lady—Practical Courtship—The Reason Why—A Fall Reverser—For Those Who Are Lost in Love—For Better or Worse.

My lady leaves me, bearing off
My heart with her beaming smile,
And looking back her crimson lips
Are curved in saucy smile;
The twilight's tender purple dusk
Around me softly closes,
And of her presence naught is left
But scattered leaves and roses.

The perfume of the fragments drifts
On breezes faintly sighing,
That almost seem as whispered words
Of hers to mine replying;
The love-light glancing from her eyes
Within my heart still lingers;
I seem to touch her parted lips;
And clasp her dainty fingers.

Practical Courtship.
You say you love me. Maybe so—
I would not doubt your word;
But others before now, you know,
Have such sweet love vows heard
Who are not loved, now, as wives would
Be loved by those they wed.
You say you love me. Very good—
But will you like my bread?

You say you love me. You must know
Your words are sweet to hear;
Like tender music, soft and low,
They charm my willing ear.
But if you would win all my heart,
Promise to do a husband's part—
Swear you'll bring up the coal!

You say you love me. And you ask
If I could love you, too.
I own 'twould be an easy task
If only you are true.
This, this alone I stipulate,
That I may sleep till half-past eight,
And you shall build the fire.

—(Somerville Journal.)

The Reason Why.

'Twas on New England's sandy, wave-washed shore,
The place, Santa-ket, her name, Lenore,
Perhaps a week I'd known her, hardly more,
But I sadly worshipped fair Lenore.

Brown-brown her hair, her lovely eyes the same,
But neither flowing locks nor eyes could name
That nameless charm, that witchery that came
From added graces feeding beauty's flame.

Yes, I worshipped her! And she? Ah, well—
I own 'twould be an easy task
If only you are true.
This, this alone I stipulate,
That I may sleep till half-past eight,
And you shall build the fire.

—(Somerville Journal.)

A Fall Reverser.

Another summer has gone by,
Ah me! the swallows homeward fly,
Again the swallows homeward fly,
I see.
I've wandered by the flowing tide
With many a new lover's side,
But none asked me his little bride
To be.

I've laughed full many a girlish laugh,
To be! and yearned for a better half
To be.
A dozen autumns have taken wing,
Each with its winter and its spring,
And now I'd marry anything
With glee.

I've wandered with young fellows by
The sea; but when I call my eyes and sigh
They flee.
I've haunted all the lover's nooks,
And looked my new effective looks,
But I am still upon the books,
Ah me! —(Philadelphia News.)

A Memory.

I wonder if she can remember,
As I do, tonight,
That evening, in early September,
Of perfect delight.

Together we rowed on the river,
Borne on by the tide;
My heart I was ready to give her,
My fortune beside.

But, alas! I soon learned that another
Had captured my rose,
As my passion I managed to smother,
And didn't propose.

And it may be she doesn't remember
That fond episode;
For that evening in early September
She rode—but I rowed.

The New Baby.
What strange little man can this be,
No word no word no word no word;
What mystical things he has seen
With those wide-open, wondering eyes?

What treasures untold, from what lands,
Do his soft baby fingers unfold?
What word does he bring from afar,
This stranger, so young, yet so old?

Does he bring us some measure from spheres
Unheard of, from worlds we know not;
Starry countries we dwell in, mayhap,
As babies, and now have forgot?

Who can tell what he knows, what he thinks?
He says not a word, but he looks
In a minute more wisdom I'll swear,
Than is shut in the biggest of books.

Farther on is Rest.
A little farther on
I shall find rest, I say, I say,
When sorrow's settling cloud blurs out the gleam
Of glory's torch, and to a vanished dream
Love's palace hath been turned; then—all
Depressed,
Despairing, sick at heart—we may not stay
Our weary feet; so lonely then doth seem
This shadow-haunted world. We, so unblest,
Weep not to see the grave which waits its guest;
And, feeling round our feet the cool, sweet clay,
We speak the fading word farewell and say,
Not on this side—alas!—I shall find rest
A little farther on.

Little Things.
We call him strong who stands unmoved—
Calm as some tempest-beaten rock;
When some great trouble burs his shock;
We say of him, his strength is proved.
But when the spent storm folds its wings,
How bears he then life's little things?

About his brow we twine our wreath
Who seeks the battle's thickest smoke,
Braves flashing run and sabre stroke
And scoffs at danger, laughs at death;
We praise him for his strength and rings;
But is he brave in little things?

We call him great who does some deed
That echoes from shore to shore—
Does that, and then does nothing more;
Yet would his work earn richer reward
When brought before the King of Kings,
Were he but great in little things?

A Base Advantage.
